

New South Gate

Marc Daja Elbasani

Project Type: Academic

Course:
ED - 4
Spring 1999

Instructor:
Professors
Donlyn Lyndon
and
Sam Davis, FAIA

Kroeber Plaza, located at the end of College Avenue in Berkeley, is much less memorable than entries to the Berkeley campus on Telegraph and Euclid Avenues. The proposed design simplifies circulation, while hard and soft landscape elements increase the usable open space. An existing fountain has been reshaped to provide a center of social interaction. In the center of the fountain stands a new sculpture of a Berkeley's mascot, an upstanding golden bear. Metallic striations in the hardscape emphasize the new lines of pedestrian flow.

